d'Affaires of the US Embassy in Cambodia. The DSA establishes protocols to ensure that health data collected and shared under the agreement is managed according to the highest standards of privacy and data security. The MoU is a five-year agreement designed to transition Cambodia toward full health sovereignty, with key focus areas including eliminating malaria and combatting HIV/AIDS and tuberculosis, strengthening responses to emerging global health threats, and implementing a co-financing model to empower Cambodia's independent health leadership. Of the joint $36 million deal, the US Department of State intends to provide more than $30 million to strengthen and sustain Cambodian infectious disease prevention and response capabilities, with the Royal Government of Cambodia (RGC) committed to increasing its own domestic expenditures by more than $5 million, assuming greater ownership of its commodity chains while continuing to rollout new innovative diagnostics, vaccines, drugs, and other life-saving interventions. According to a joint press release issued on Tuesday, Yanara emphasised that human capital development is among Cambodia's top priorities for development. "The RGC places great importance on development cooperation that contributes to strengthening the national health system and safeguarding the well-being of the people." Describing the MoU as a new milestone on top of the 30 years of health sector cooperation between the US and Cambodia, Walker said, "The US is proud to continue working alongside the RGC to strengthen its institutional capacity to address today's public health challenges and prepare for tomorrow's emerging threats." This five-year deal underscores a shared commitment and cooperation to protect the well-being of the people of both sides and advance a resilient and sustainable health system under the leadership of the Cambodian government, the press release added. It should be noted that according to the US Department of State's press statement, this milestone marks a new phase of the US President Donald Trump's administration on global health strategy in Asia, starting first with Cambodia.

CAMBODIA: Singapore eyes Kingdom's food products on its retail shelves

The Republic of Singapore is looking to import more of Cambodian packaged and bottled food products such as cereal, nuts and food ingredients, to be placed in its increasing retail sector supported by hundreds of retail outlets across the country. Samheng Bora, Secretary of State and Chairman of the Export Promotion Task Force of the Ministry of Commerce (MoC), on Wednesday discussed cooperation with the Singapore Food Agency in Singapore to expand Cambodian agro-food products to the Singaporean market. The discussion brought together representatives from Cambodia Cashew Federation, Cambodia Rice Federation, and five food manufacturing, such as Ample Agro Products, One More Company, Misota Group, Khmer Foods Group, and City Rice Import Export Co., Ltd. to discuss expanding business and trade opportunities with major Singaporean retailers, including Fair Price Group, which has around 370 outlets nationwide and Cold Storage, which has 89 outlets, including Giant. Bora shared meaningful insights on the criteria, standards and requirements for exporting Cambodian products to Singapore. Cambodian companies also received valuable feedback to ensure their products meet international standards, improve quality, and strengthen competitiveness in the region. The event also served as a key platform to promote and showcase Cambodian products internationally, aiming to increase product value, expand collaboration opportunities, and create sustainable export pathways. This impactful business matching event is expected to lead to concrete partnership agreements and significantly expand Cambodian exports to Singapore and other international markets in the near future.

CAMBODIA: Cambodia and Czech Republic eye tourism surge

The Cambodian tourism minister and the Czech ambassador pledge deeper cooperation to increase tourist flows between the two nations. Tourism Minister Huot Hak received a courtesy call from the Ambassador of the Czech Republic, Markéta Kolc Hájková, yesterday to discuss strengthening bilateral tourism cooperation. During the meeting at the ministry, Ambassador Hájková emphasised the importance of sharing development expertise and gaining deeper insights into the travel preferences of Czech citizens to better serve the growing market. Ambassador Hájková commended Cambodia’s significant progress across all sectors, noting the remarkable growth in tourism since her first visit to the kingdom 15 years ago. She attributed this success to the government’s maintenance of lasting peace, political stability, and public order, which ensures a safe environment for international visitors. In response, Minister Hak expressed gratitude to the Czech government and its people for their enduring support, particularly during Cambodia’s reconstruction period following the Khmer Rouge regime. He noted a steady annual increase in Czech arrivals and reaffirmed the ministry’s commitment to promoting tourism as a shared priority. Both parties agreed to implement joint initiatives, including collaborative promotional campaigns to steadily increase reciprocal tourist flows. Diplomatic relations between Cambodia and the Czech Republic were established in 1956 and have flourished for more than 7 decades. This historic bond is uniquely personified by King Norodom Sihamoni, who spent his formative years studying in Prague and remains fluent in Czech.

CAMBODIA: Vietnam and Cambodia reinforce ties with $20 billion trade goal

A high-level visit by a senior Vietnamese delegation has reinforced the traditional alliance between Cambodia and Vietnam, marking a pivotal moment for regional stability and economic integration, officials said. The official mission, led by Tran Cam Tu, Permanent Member of the Communist Party of Vietnam (CPV) Central Committee Secretariat, focused on implementing long-term cooperation agreements designed to withstand shifting global dynamics. According to a formal statement, the Cambodian People’s Party (CPP) Central Committee affirmed that the visit was part of the 2025–2027 delegation exchange programmed. The agenda remained strictly aligned with the foundational principles of traditional friendship and comprehensive cooperation that have historically defined the relationship between the two neighboring nations. During the diplomatic proceedings, Tu held extensive consultations with the nation’s top leadership. He met with the Cambodian People’s Party President, Samdech Hun Sen, who currently serves as Acting Head of State and President of the Senate. He also met with Prime Minister Hun Manet and National Assembly President Khuon Sudary. These meetings facilitated a strong exchange of governance strategies and coordinated policies for regional and international forums. At a prominent reception, the Cambodian People’s Party Vice President Say Chhum lauded Vietnam’s rapid industrial progress. He expressed firm confidence that, under its current leadership, Vietnam would successfully transition to a high-income developed nation by 2045. In response, Tu commended Cambodia’s developmental milestones and specifically praised the improved coordination in defense and border security. The security dialogue highlighted the efficacy of provincial cooperation in curbing transnational crime. Both sides emphasized the need to prevent hostile entities from using their respective territories for subversive activities. A key priority remains accelerating border demarcation to ensure the frontier remains a zone of peace and development. Regarding regional stability, both delegations reaffirmed ASEAN’s centrality in resolving disputes through peaceful means and in accordance with international law. Cambodian officials expressed specific gratitude for Vietnam’s support in monitoring regional ceasefires. To promote grassroots ties, the Cambodia-Vietnam Friendship Association Chairperson and CPP Vice-President Men Sam a joined Tu to meet with Cambodian alumni who studied in Vietnam. Looking ahead, the leadership expressed optimism about economic targets. With bilateral trade nearing record highs, officials expect to reach a $20 billion two-way trade milestone in the coming years, further cementing the economic interdependence of the two Southeast Asian partners.

CAMBODIA: ADP forecasts 4.5% growth for Cambodia in 2026

Cambodia’s economy is projected to expand by 4.5% in 2026, assuming an early stabilization of geopolitical tensions in the Middle East, according to the Asian Development Bank’s latest report. The Asian Development Outlook, released in April 2026, suggests that growth will strengthen to 5.0% in 2027 as external conditions improve and domestic reforms take effect. Asian Development Bank Country Director Yasmin Siddiqi said that manufacturing remains a primary pillar of growth, while government initiatives to revive tourism are expected to bolster economic momentum despite external pressures. Industrial output is forecast to rise by 7.3% in 2026, driven by robust garment exports and increasing contributions from non-garment sectors such as electrical components, types, and furniture. The agricultural sector is expected to record modest growth of 0.9%, supported by international demand for rice and cashew exports, as well as policies aimed at sustainable production. Conversely, the services sector is likely to soften, with growth slowing to 2.3% from 3.4% in 2025. This deceleration is attributed partly to the economic impact of the Thailand border closure. Despite these headwinds, investor confidence remains firm; approved fixed-asset investments rose by 45% in 2025, reflecting a strategic shift toward higher-value industries. Inflation is forecast to edge up to 2.8% in 2026. A prolonged spike in global fuel prices could raise costs across manufacturing and tourism. Furthermore, the fiscal deficit is expected to widen as public spending rises to support vulnerable households, while revenue growth moderates. Geopolitical and Security Analyst Thong Mengdavid said the moderation in growth reflects weakening external demand and structural challenges in the construction sector. He warned that rising competition from low-cost economies such as Bangladesh and Sri Lanka is eroding traditional advantages, while supply chain disruptions linked to the Middle East crisis are weighing on productivity. While Cambodia has made progress in diversifying into electronics and agro-processing, Mengdavid stressed that the transition remains in its early stages. Addressing skills gaps and improving infrastructure will be critical to the country’s goal of becoming a high-income economy by 2050.

CAMBODIA: 7 new investments worth $136 million to generate 1,584 jobs in northeastern Cambodia

The northeastern region of Cambodia has attracted seven investment projects seeking approval and incentives from the Royal Government of Cambodia (RGC), with a total investment capital of approximately $136 million and the potential to create 1,584 new jobs, despite ongoing external crises. Chairman of the Special Programmed to Promote Investment in the Northeastern Provinces (SPIN Programmed) Working Group, Hean Sahib, chaired a meeting at the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) on Friday to review and approve special investment incentives for the seven projects. “These seven investment projects, with a total investment of approximately $136 million, are expected to create 1,584 new jobs once they become operational, which two projects in Mondulkiri province, four in Stung Treng province, and one in Kratie province,” he said. According to the news statement of SPIN programmed, these projects cover diverse sectors, including agro-industrial crop cultivation, livestock farming and processing, rubber plantation and processing factories, eucalyptus plantation and paper processing, animal farming, coffee and cocoa cultivation and processing, cashew processing enterprises, pig farming, and agricultural and timber plantation projects for furniture production. Speaking at the meeting, Sahib noted that despite multiple external crises, such as border tensions with Thailand and the oil crisis in the Middle East, the SPIN programmed continued to receive investment proposals throughout March and April. “This clearly demonstrates the attractiveness and investment potential of the northeastern region, even though the regional and global economic environment remains unfavorable,” he said. He also urged relevant stakeholders to continue facilitating investors to the fullest extent of their responsibilities, especially as rising global fuel prices have increased production and transportation costs. Sahib called for broader promotion efforts to ensure more investors can benefit from the “special incentives” under the “Special Investment Promotion programmed in the Four Northeastern Provinces (2025-2028).” It should be noted that since the official launch of this programmed on April 9, 2025, under the high presidency of Hun Manet, the Investment Promotion Working Group has received a total of 58 investment proposals worth $2.407 billion. Of these, 33 projects—valued at $1.07 billion—have been granted incentives, with the potential to create 17,213 jobs.
